The University of Johannesburg's Centre for Africa-China Studies (CACs) in partnership with the UJ Library invites you to a webinar titled:

The dualist approach to social security in developing countries: Perspectives from China and South Africa

DATE: Monday 6 June 2022 | TIME: 13:00 – 14:00 (SAST)

VENUE: <https://zoom.us/j/92393710818>

This webinar will explore an article written by Professor Letlhokwa Mpedi and Professor Barbara Darimont titled: The dualist approach to social security in developing countries: Perspectives from China and South Africa.

This article examines mainly in legal terms, informal and formal social security arrangements in the P.R. China and South Africa with a view to old-age provision.

This contribution sheds light on the need for both countries to improve their social security systems. One approach could be to link traditional, informal social protection arrangements with formal social security systems stemming from the developed world, or to enable them to complement one another.
